

Blurting: Almost

Unavoidable

Exodus 4:10-13

Edwin S. Jones
February 11, 2007

We share a common problem with Moses, the general inability to be smooth when we first launch out on a project. Most of us are doomed to blurt before we can “wax an elephant” (i.e. wax eloquent). We might mute the effect of a blurt, but we best just come to terms with it and get on with blurting. That’s about the only hope we have of attaining a more relaxed way of doing God’s work.

Remembering Moses (Ex. 4:10-13)

- Most likely an accurate appraisal of his shortcomings
- A failure to understand the blurting principle
- A failure to trust God

The Cure, or at Least Easing the Pain (Heb. 5:12-14)

- I Peter 2:1-2
- Ephesians 4:14-15
- II Peter 1:5-11
- Romans 12:1-2

Blurting is largely unavoidable. Let’s just deal with the inevitability and get on with speaking good words for Jesus. Remember, the more we blurt, the less we blurt. Happy blurting!